Informal Adult Learning

Shaping the Way Ahead

The DIUS Consultation

John Denham launched the Government's consultation on the future of informal adult learning on 15 January 2008. The consultation invites "everyone with an interest in the future of informal adult learning" to contribute to the debate.

The consultation period runs until the 15 May 2008.

Preparing to Respond - 6th May 2008: The Environment as an Informal Adult Learning Issue

The aim of this conference is:

To ensure that climate change and sustainable lifestyles are made core issues in national policy for adult education.

This event will:

- bring together stakeholders and key influencers in the post-16 education, third and environmental sectors
 - identify possibilities for securing attitudinal & behavioural change, relating to sustainability, through informal education
 - consider which adult education strategies will elicit the greatest combined personal, social & environmental benefits
 - inform the responses of delegates and their associates to the DIUS formal consultation which ends 15 May 2008

“All forms of good adult learning are valuable. Whether vocational, or simply for personal enlightenment and fulfilment, adult learning contributes immeasurably to the wellbeing and health of our society.”

John Denham

Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills

Programme

The day will comprise a series of short presentations on linked themes. After each group of inputs there will be table discussions by delegates who will address issues raised. A brief feedback from each group will ensure that no important topic is overlooked.

It is expected that David Lammy MP will speak shortly after noon; the programme is being built around his keynote address.

As a result of the event delegates will have a better understanding of the relationships between adult learning and environmental issues. This should both inform their current practice and contribute to their thinking concerning submissions to Government in response to the present consultation.

Who should attend?

This seminar aims to put issues of environmental sustainability firmly on the informal adult learning agenda and invites stakeholders from the post-16 education, third and environmental sectors to share perspectives and help to inform their responses to this consultation.

Stakeholders will include Local Authorities, Colleges, Environmental bodies, the Third Sector, RDAs, Empowerment Partnerships and Government Offices.

The Opportunity to Influence Policy

Across Government there is a deep concern regarding environmental and sustainability issues; a concern which is increasingly expressed by much of the population. There is a diversity of excellent practice in terms of adult learning and the environment across a range of organisations in the public, private and third sector. But these lack effective co-ordination or support from Government and other funding bodies. Regrettably environmental issues are not mentioned at all in the consultation paper. This event provides the opportunity to ensure that environmental issues feature clearly in the debate. Moreover

John Denham acknowledges that, “If the public do not have the capacity to understand scientific evidence and risk, they face being unable to make the best decisions for themselves and their families, or, in a democracy, to put the most appropriate pressure on politicians.”

Speech “Science and Society”, delivered at the RSA,
16 January 2008

This lack of understanding has a strong bearing on a wide range of personal and public issues, from obesity to climate change. Without strategies that incorporate elements of science education within Informal Adult Learning, another generation will pass before there can be any hope that these concerns will be addressed.

Educational Centres Association

The Educational Centres Association ‘ECA’ is a national adult learning organisation funded by DIUS. It was founded as the Educational Settlements Association in 1920 and is in reciprocal membership with NIACE. Its traditional territory has been ‘liberal’ adult education with a strong emphasis on learner engagement; it has places at board level for student representation. The Association is a founder member of the Community Sector Coalition where it most clearly represents the voice of adult learning in the third sector.

Over the past two years, as part of the Coalition’s sustainability actions, the ECA has played a strong role in the DEFRA funded ‘Every Action Counts’ initiative promoting 5 themes (save energy, travel wisely, shop ethically, save our resources, care for your area) of environmental sustainability within third sector organisations.
